

Premiere for Japanese Film

THE LOBBY of the Dupont Theater, looked colorfully Nipponese last evening for the premiere of the prize-winning Japanese film, "Ugetsu," sponsored by former United States Ambassador to Japan and Mrs. Joseph C. Grew.

Japanese Ambassador Iguchi stood with Mr. Grew to greet the guests as they entered. The wives of both were unable to be present, but Mr. Iguchi was accompanied by his son, Norio, and daughter, Tatsuko. Miss Iguchi wore a pale blue tafeta ballerina gown instead of a kimono.

PRESIDENTIAL Assistant and Mrs. Sherman Adams were there, she wearing a short gown of navy lace with a pink drap. Deputy CIA Director and Mrs. Charles P. Cabell were early arrivals, as were Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Valle.

Indian Ambassador and Mme. Mehta, she in a dark green sari, Ceylonese Ambassador and Mme. Gunawardene and Vet Namee Ambassador and Mme. Tran Van Chuong were others from the Far East.

Robert Murphy, another former United States Ambassador to Japan and now Deputy Undersecretary of State, came alone. Washington Cathedral's Dean and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, Jr., were on hand, and so were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, Norwegian First Secretary Elovius Mangor, and many more.
